Non-contractual estimates, based on the developer's prudent scenario: occupancy rate reduced according to villa size to 65% (4 bedrooms), 67% (3 bedrooms), 70% (2 bedrooms) or 72% (1 bedroom), at the low end of the ranges observed in Uluwatu (the developer assumes up to 79%), constant nightly rate (no increase assumed). Before personal taxation in your country of residence and excluding exchange-rate movements (instalments and management are invoiced in rupiah). The 31-year leasehold gives the right to use the villa and receive its income for its duration, extendable by negotiation.

Good to know. The purchase is made with your own funds: in Indonesia, banks do not lend to foreign buyers. Payment is spread over the construction period.

HOW YOU BECOME AN OWNER

From reservation to your first guests.

Reservation: €10,000. This first payment covers setting up your Indonesian company (about €2,000) and a deposit of €8,000.

PT PMA company. A foreigner cannot hold land directly in Indonesia: the purchase goes through an Indonesian company with foreign capital, set up in your name. It signs the leasehold and receives the income.

31-year leasehold. A right to use the land for 30 years plus the construction year, extendable by negotiation with the landowner.

In the event of late delivery, the developer pays compensation of one million rupiah per day, about €49 at the current exchange rate.

GUARANTEES

The developer has been building on the island for years: more than 90 homes have already been completed. In Bali, the usual guarantee is often one year. Here, each element of your villa is covered according to its nature, and the structure for ten years.

Fire, vandalism and natural disaster insurance with Allianz Indonesia, with a French-speaking contact; reimbursement calculated on the residual value of the project.

RENTAL

The developer's rental management takes care of everything for 15% of revenue: listings, pricing, messages, check-ins, cleaning and maintenance, with a dashboard and a monthly report.
